Lesson Aims

- LO: To write the ending to our story.
- SC: I can use capital letters and full stops.
- I can use adjectives.
- I can use conjunctions:
- I can use a sentence of three .
- I can use a fronted adverbial
- I can use pronouns.
- I can punctuate speech correctly
- I can use a conjunction at the beginning of the sentence.

Main Teaching

- Watch the end part of the video from 1'37" on clip to end.
- Today, you are writing the ending to the story.
- Man opening the door for help
- Villagers coming to help with their lanterns.
- Boat sailing away

Main Teaching

- Read this ending to the story.
- What does it need? What is it missing?
- What do you think of it?

The man ran down the stairs. He opened the door. The villagers were climbing the hill up to the lighthouse.

"Thank you for coming to help me," said the Lighthouse keeper. They held their lanterns high then the boat sailed away from the rocks.

"Thank you for coming to help me," said the Lighthouse keeper. They held their lanterns high then the boat sailed away from the rocks.

- It's not particularly exciting! By adding adjectives, conjunctions, adverbs, fronted adverbials, sentences of 3s and similes it could be far more interesting.

Main Teaching

- Here's a better version, but we know yours will be even more spectacular!

Quickly, the man ran down the stairs so that he could go and get help. He opened the door but amazingly the villagers were already climbing the hill up to the lighthouse. Because the light had gone out, they were all carrying lanterns.

"Thank you for coming to help me," smiled the Lighthouse keeper. They held their lanterns high and the boat sailed away from the rocks.

Wednesday Task

- Use the success criteria and word bank to write the ending to your story of The Lighthouse.
- We would love to read your work so please email us year3@stpauls-dorking.surrey.sch.uk Then we can put it in your English book for you.
