SPaG Starter

These words have been contracted- can you make them into two words?

|              |                 |               |
|--------------|-----------------|---------------|
| isn't | mustn't  | who'll |
| I'd   | wouldn't | you've |

SPaG Starter – Example Answers

Isn't – is not

Wouldn't – would not

Who'll - who will

I'd – I would

Wouldn't – would not

You've – you have

Lesson Aims

- LO: I can retell the mythical story of Thor's Hammer
- I can describe the characters and setting in my story using noun phrases (Thor had a long, black cloak)
- I can use conjunctions- so, if, but, while, which, until, because.
- I can use adverbs – quickly loudly suddenly
- I can use fronted adverbials with commas - Just then, One sunny day,
- I can use a sentence of 3 – for appearance Thor had a long cloak, black boots and a mightly hammer or for action woke up, yawned and reached out his hand for his hammer.
- I can punctuate speech correctly “Give me my hammer!” shouted Thor
- I can use paragraphs

Main Teaching Summary

- Today you are going to write the first two paragraphs of your story. You know the story off by heart and yesterday you improved it by adding fronted adverbials and conjunctions.
- Thinking about that today you need to write two paragraphs
- Introduction – paragraph 1 – a description of Thor, where he lives and the realisation his hammer has disappeared – how would he feel?
- Paragraph 2 – Thor going to Freya and asking for help. Her giving him the cloak and Thrym refusing to give the hammer unless Freya marries him.
- Look carefully at the success criteria – see if you can include these elements
- Read the example of the next slide and see if you can find examples of the success criteria.

Wednesday Task – this example is what your work could look like. Before you start writing highlight the success criteria that has been achieved.

- Early one morning Thor woke up, opened his eyes quickly and reached for his trusty hammer, Molliner. Unfortunately, it had vanished into thin air. “Where could it be” thought Thor. Suddenly, he realised that the mean, nasty giants had stolen it because they wanted to take over the world. Quickly, he realised he would need the help of another god so he decided to go and ask Freya.
- In her beautiful palace, Freya was brushing her long, dark hair. Thor told her the problem and she agreed to lend him her magical cloak of feathers. As soon as Thor put it on, he soared high above the clouds and could see that Thrym had stolen it. He swooped down quickly and asked for it back. “No,” replied Thrym. “I will only give it to you if Freya agrees to be my bride.”

Plenary

- Read through your work – check off the success criteria – did you achieve it all? Is there anything that you did not do that you need to make sure you include tomorrow?
