Be the teacher!

Some of these sentences are correct. Some have mistakes in them.

Can you find the mistakes and correct them?

SPaG Starter

The black dog chased the little cat down the street
mrs Brown went to the shops.

The football match was in dorking.

The children played in the playground.

Lesson Aims

- I can find out and remember information
- I can make notes and drawings to help me remember

Setting for the lesson

Well our story ended well.

We may have a problem though

- 1 We can't get hold of Mother Dragon
- 2 I noticed a crack in the shell of the egg, it may be hatching!

Who knows how to look after baby dragons?

What will we need to get ready?

Discuss with TP/adult at home.

I have found some information

WARNING!!!!

We may need to be prepared for something dangerous!

Handling a baby dragon with its razor-sharp teeth and claws can be painful at times. So you need to take precautions. In times gone by knights wore suits of armour. We will need to improvise!

CIRCA 1410

WHEN IT BITES — AND IT WILL — REMEMBER THAT YOUR DRAGON IS ONLY PLAYING. DO NOT RETALIATE! IT'S NEVER A GOOD IDEA TO LOSE YOUR HEAD.

PROTECTIVE CLOTHING

A simple pair of falconry gloves and a welding helmet are the most effective way to pet your little creature without sustaining a serious wound. You might also find these other items helpful too:

FALCONER'S GLOVES

(heavy duty)

FIRE BLANKET CAPE

FIREPROOF BROLLY

STURDY BOOTS

BROOM

WELDER'S MASK

SHIELD

Use a dustbin lid if you don't have a shield. (NB metal lids work better than plastic.)

FIRE EXTINGUISHERS

DRAGON TREATS

Grooming

Keeping your dragon looking good can be a time-consuming and expensive business. There are specialist dragon-grooming parlours scattered about the world, but these are mostly reserved for the A-list celebrity dragon-owners and are extremely costly. Just look how many people are involved in dragon-grooming...

PLUMBER

If your dragon has a blockage, he's your man.

TILER

Great for fixing dislodged scales.

CHIMNEY SWEEP

Excellent for clearing nostrils of cinders and bogeys.

CLEANING CREW

Just the job for adding sparkle and shine to scales and wings.

TREE SURGEON

Terrific for keeping claws in check.

PEST CONTROL

Brilliant for keeping dragon fleas in check.

PAINTER DECORATOR

MAK IS IN

Exercise and Training

Dragons need regular exercise, but taking one out is no walk in the park, especially if you plan to go somewhere public like a... er... park.

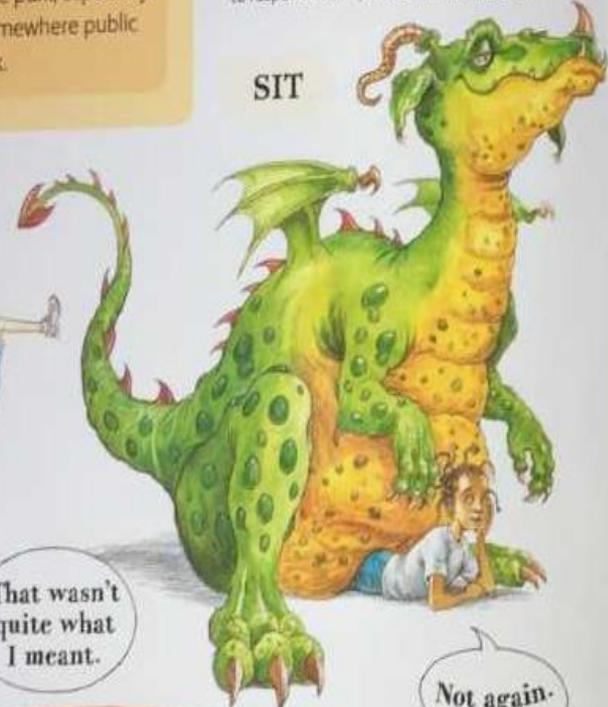

HEEL

Training

Compared to the size of their bodies, dragons' brains are minuscule and hold very little intelligence. As a consequence, they are NOT the easiest pet to train. However, with a lot of patience, kindness and food, you can teach them to respond to simple commands such as:

SIT

That wasn't quite what I meant.

Not again.

TOP TIP

Use a stern, firm tone of voice to reprimand your dragon if it misbehaves. Never shout, or you will lose your voice (and the rest of your body).

FETCH

Go, boy!

Be Prepared

You will need to take your specialised equipment with you on your walks: a large collar and lead (attached firmly to your dragon), a fireproof poop scoop, 9 or 10 fireproof poop bags, a few treats, 2 one-ton foot-weights and a couple of good friends.

FIREPROOF POOP BAGS and one fireproof poop scoop (large).

ANKLE WEIGHTS

to keep your dragon down to earth.

DROP

TOP TIP

Give your pet the respect it deserves and you will have it eating out of your hand in no time. (Do this carefully, or it may actually eat your hand.)

NOSTRIL CORKS

FIREPROOF MUZZLE

STRONG COLLAR AND LEAD (firmly buckled).

FIRE EXTINGUISHER in case of little accidents.

Make notes and drawings to help you remember the information, e.g. I have started one

Fire extinguishers

Wheelbarrow to clean

Welders mask

Plenary

Show your words and drawings to your talk partner or an adult and explain them
