Homophones

Homophones are words that sound the same but are spelt differently and have different meanings.

Talk about the different means for these homophones:

there

their they're

Practise spelling these words in your workbook.

There, their, they're

Which 'there' selling is correct for each sentence?

_____ is lots of different kinds of minibeasts.

Ben and Sam always play together because _____ best friends.

My brother and sister have _____ own bedrooms.

What is that over _____?

Lesson aim

I can read the book Superworm and describe the main character.

Super worm being read to you – watch up to 1 minute 36 seconds:

Missing poster

Oh no! Superworm has been wormnapped (like kidnapped but for worms)!

Your task is to write a 'Missing' poster to help find him.

What will we need to include to write a good 'Missing' poster?

Missing poster

Look at this example.

What makes it good writing?

We use green to show some of the Success Criteria we need to use in our writing.

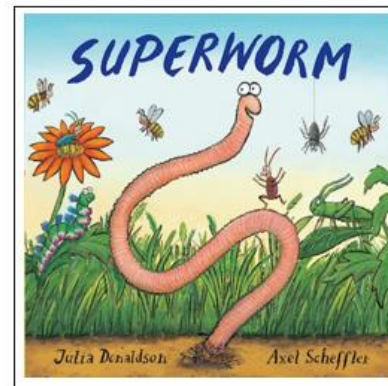

Look at the words and phrases highlighted green.

Why have the been highlighted?

Are the adjectives, noun phrases, adverbs or conjunctions?

How do they make the write interesting?

Missing!

Have you seen Superworm? He has been wormnapped by a big, black crow.

He is long and thin with pink, wrinkly skin. He has big, round eyes that help him search for animals who need help. Amazingly, he is no ordinary worm because he has super powers that he uses to rescue animals in danger.

If you see him, please tell the other animals immediately!

Your go!

You are going to write a description of Superworm to make a 'Missing' poster.

Use the template in the home learning folder for this week (there is one with some sentences on to help you or a blank one) or write in your work book.

Use this Success Criteria to help you:

- I can use capital letters and full stops.
- I can use adjectives to make noun phrases – big, round eyes
- I can use conjunctions to extend sentences –

and but because so that

I can use different sentence starters –

Interestingly,

Amazingly,

Did you know...?
